Notable features:

The southern portion of this terrace is somewhat younger than the upper, though not by much. Two distinct styles; two builders, likely. South portion Roman glazed brick, stone lintels and sills, steps. Heavy cornice treatment and transomed front windows. There are similar houses in Hampden and east Baltimore. The houses are well cared for.

The north portion has textured brick work in eccentric and varied patterns. Numbers 320-322 and 332-334 have been formstoned. All have marble steps and sills.

Environmental context:

A quiet street, good and well kept houses on both sides. Carrollton is slated to get a foot-bridge across the expressway depression rather than a vehicular bridge. This should assure the quiet character of the street. Street trees are good but a few replacements are needed.
